ANITA HAS BEEN FEATURED IN

Anita Moorjani, author of New York Times best seller “Dying to be Me” has been at the apex of spiritual discussions since her 2006 Near-Death Experience which initiated her miraculous recovery from end-stage cancer.

In Anita’s subsequently successful books, “What if This is Heaven?” and “Sensitive is the New Strong”, she offers more of her incredible understandings gained from her experience on the ‘Other Side’.

Anita’s beautifully illustrated books for the young and the young at heart, “Love, A Story about Who You Truly Are” and “Scaredy Caterpillar”, also cleverly share her message of the importance of embodying love in a fear-based world.

Anita's Story

After a 4-year battle with cancer, Anita's 86 lb tumor-ridden body slipped into a 30-hour coma. Doctors declared she had mere hours to live. As her body shut down, Anita journeyed to an alternate, spirit-based realm based solely on absolute love. In her travels through the veil to the 'Other Side', Anita learned of her innate power to heal her body, and made the decision to come back and "live her life fearlessly". To the amazement of her attending physicians, Anita's recovery was swift; within three and a half weeks she was clear of all tumors and cancer markers, and her deep skin wounds and lesions no longer required reconstructive surgery. Miraculously, her body had experienced full recovery.

Her astonishing expedition into the spiritual world, defining a new focus on the power of self-love, was exquisitely expressed in her internationally renowned book "Dying to be Me." Translated in over 45 languages, and having sold over 1.5 million copies, Anita's personal account begins with her social and emotional life in a traditional Sindhi upbringing, while attending a British School, contained within the intercultural, East Asian landscape of Hong Kong. Throughout the book, Anita explains the correlation of her illness trajectory with these conflicting and confining elements of her life, which then resulted in her bodily demise and her NDE. Her life-death-life journey provides her followers with a deepened understanding of what Anita learned through her awe-filled, transformative experience.

Anita rose to popularity through Dr. Wayne Dyer's desperate search for her in 2011 noting that Anita provided a compelling example of someone who broke through the barrier between this physical world and the spiritual realm, and returned with salient information for living a love-filled life. Since then, Anita has been invited on innumerable news shows, podcasts, interviews, signings, workshops, retreats, cruises as the headliner and classified expert on embracing personal magnificence.

Currently living in the US with her husband Danny, Anita continues to dedicate her life to enriching the minds and hearts of people with her story of transformation. She joyfully speaks her truth with grace, love and kindness to sold-out audiences who want to learn how to claim and enhance their own connection to the Other Side in order to bring that depth of universal love to their lives here and now.
